

Air National Guard Pilot Thanks EO Johnson Employees for Care Packages

Captain Andy Dustan (left), Air National Guard C130 Pilot, thanked EO Johnson Office Technologies and its employees for care packages the employees gathered, assembled, and shipped to him while he was stationed in Afghanistan. Captain Dustan and his father, Ron Dustan, CFO – EO Johnson Office Technologies, hold a framed flag that was flown in combat in Afghanistan. Captain Dustan presented the flag to EO Johnson Office Technologies.

EO Johnson employees gathered food/snacks, toiletries, and various essential items and shipped them to Captain Dustan during his last term in Afghanistan. Captain Dustan was surprised by the amount he received – some eight boxes. The boxes arrived over a period of a couple weeks. “They just kept arriving, one or two at a time,” he said. “A lot of the items that were sent were hard to get where I was, so the care packages were very much appreciated.” Because of the amount employees sent, he was able to share with many others beyond his immediate squadron.

Captain Dustan was part of the 774th Expeditionary Airlift Squadron and stationed at Bagram Airfield in Afghanistan.
